Steamfitters Local 638 Endorses Democrat Rory Lancman for State Senate in Nassau County

First Endorsement of the Race Goes to the Democrat Vying to Flip New York's 7th Senate District

NASSAU COUNTY - Today, Steamfitters Local 638, the union that maintains jurisdiction over all general pipe fitting workers in Nassau and Suffolk counties, and the Five Boroughs, endorsed Democrat Rory Lancman for State Senate in New York State's 7th Senate District.

Local 638, formed by immigrants seeking justice in the workplace and better lives for their families, has been organizing Steamfitters on Long Island and New York City for over 140 years. They are endorsing Lancman because of his strong commitment to supporting union labor and bringing down the cost of living for Long Islanders.

Steamfitters Local 638 maintains an active presence in legislative and electoral politics at the federal, state and local levels, supporting legislation and candidates that promote good, union jobs and increasing wages, benefits, and safety standards for both union and non-union workers in our industry.

Rory Lancman said: "I'm honored to receive the endorsement of Steamfitters Local 638, which represents some of the hardest working men and women I've ever known. New York State was built by unions and Nassau residents deserve a representative in Albany who understands that. As your next State Senator I will always stand up for working people as I fight to deliver lower costs for middle class families, combat corruption, and make our communities safer."

Robert Bartels, Jr. - Business Manager, Enterprise Association Steamfitters Local 638 said,
"Rory Lancman is a dedicated public servant with a track record of supporting pro-labor, common-sense solutions to the problems that confront everyday New Yorkers. On behalf of Steamfitters Local 638, we look forward to him representing our members in Albany to fight for good, middle-class, union jobs and practical policies that prioritize people over politics."

About Rory Lancman:

Rory Lancman is a former state assemblyman and New York City councilman living in Great Neck who served in New York's own 42nd Infantry Division. Rory is a nationally recognized attorney for a prominent civil rights organization fighting antisemitism on Long Island and across the country, and is a significant contributor to improving life in Nassau County and saving taxpayers' money.

He is running for State Senate to make life less expensive, hold government more accountable, and keep our communities safe. A serious problem-solver with experience rooting out waste, he has lowered the growth in property taxes, electric and utility bills, and other costs to consumers. Rory has confronted powerful politicians of both parties who break the law, made it harder for criminals to prey on women, children and the elderly, and held accountable institutions that harbor and spread antisemitism and all forms of bigotry.
